

Student Health Force® named as the first strategic program partner by the Force for Health Foundation
Award-winning program to help Foundation improve children's health

The award-winning enrichment curriculum, Student Health Force, was named today as the Force for Health Foundation's first strategic program partner. Forging a strategic partnership aligns perfectly with the Foundation's mission to provide innovative health solutions to students, schools, and communities through new technologies, curriculum, and programs that make healthier tomorrows possible.

Student Health Force, an online youth health literacy resource and program. It helps students become advocates for health, while facilitating the inclusion of health education into core subject areas through easy-to-use online health curriculum. Student Health Force curriculum is aligned with national education health standards and presented in three motivating blocks: Learn it! (knowledge), Live it! (application), and Share it! (advocacy). With online and hands on activities, it has been shown to be effective in transforming students into "health champions" for their community. "I saw Student Health Force teenagers in Chicago learn healthy behaviors and influence their peers and their families," stated James M. Galloway, M.D., FACP, FACC, Assistant U.S. Surgeon General (retired). "It is a great example of everyone working together to build a healthier community."

Student Health Force will enhance the Foundation's School Nurse – A Force for Health initiative. With Student Health Force in place school nurses can play an even bigger role in transforming the quality and access to care for our children. Through the time-savings acquired by the use of Health eTools for Schools, a Force for Health Foundation strategic program partner, nurses can educate students about healthy choices with Student Health Force curriculum on demand. As a web-based program students can easily share its healthy lessons with family and friends becoming a force for health.

Student Health Force is excited to share the success of our application with the Force for Health Foundation to be a catalyst to improve children's health.
