Join the Force for Health in Chicago

Student Health Force expands in Chicago to your organization! Building a Healthier Chicago and the Student Health Force have joined forces to provide the content, data gathering system and demonstration program to Austin and throughout the city.

Through a generous grant through the IDEALL Foundation from the program creator, InnerLink, Building a Healthier Chicago is offering

FREE training and access for one entire year to Student Health Force for all stakeholders in Austin and other neighborhoods served through Building a Healthier Chicago wishing to try the program with one of their staff.

The Student Health Force program is part of InnerLink's suite of products. Student Health Force is a K-12 enrichment curriculum and in-school, afterschool or summer health education program focused on enabling students to make healthier choices for themselves and to be peer mentors and advocates to others. Presented in three building blocks: Learn it! Live it! and Share it!, students work through topics such as nutrition, fitness, tobacco and health literacy. A built in data management system lets you track your progress and has built in pre- and post-testing. It seamlessly interfaces to the Health eAchievement portal for coordinated school health with a fitness assessment and electronic medical record system for school nurses. Use it to supplement your program goals. For more information, visit www.studenthealthforce.com.

How do I sign up?
