

Mirror Man

Last time I had looked in the mirror,
I saw a confused boy.
As I look into the mirror now,
I see a young man.

I learned not to blame others for my mistakes.
This man in the mirror is starting to look familiar,
I think I recognize him.
When you point at someone for your downfalls,
Point at a mirror, to see whom to blame.

Changing yourself for the better is good,
However, changing people around you is even greater.
I hope that it goes on,
To recycle good in every soul.

You are your own enemy.
You live your own life.
If you're going to blame others,
With a mirror your fingers should point
In one direction.